

Ph.D. in Financial Science

Passion for applying scientific research in finance

An intellectual challenge based on applied research

Taking part in this program means getting involved in a mind-boggling challenge that focuses on applied research where students lead innovative projects with a solid scientific base. This is a one-of-a-kind program in Mexico as it prepares students to carry out their knowledge, not only within their organizations but within the fields of academia and research.

At EGADE Business School, various strategic research groups focus on innovative knowledge creation. Research groups in the field of Finance pursue projects in Asset Valuation and Portfolio Management, Financial Risk Management, Corporate Finance, International Finance, Financial Institutions and Macroeconomics, thereby fulfilling current and future research needs within academia in order to develop solutions for the financial sector.

Passion for global financial challenges

The Ph.D. in Financial Science provides students with a truly international experience thanks to our multiple agreements and alliances with several universities around the world.

These agreements translate into experiences ranging from the participation of international academic leaders in Ph.D. courses to collaborative research projects and multiple opportunities of studying abroad.

Format and concentrations

The Ph.D. in Financial Science is a 4-years part-time research program, starting in August of each year.

It is a measurable program with a high impact on both the academic world and the financial community.

Students of this particular program expand their perspectives through hands-on seminars taught by financial experts, which will help them thoroughly understand the reality of the financial industry in both the public and private spheres.
